Exhibition statement

These artworks are inspired by the amazing coastal environment of Sydney, from the vibrant seaweed clinging to its reefs, to the sandstone cliffs, the flowers of summer, and the sea in its various moods.

Born in 1975 in Sydney, Linton Meagher studied art at the Julian Ashton School and the University of Sydney, completing a Bachelor of Arts majoring in Fine Arts.

Having trained at the University of Sydney and Julian Ashton Art School, his focus in the early 90s was on tempera and oil painting. Subsequently, his practice evolved to making semi-sculptural works using resin and Perspex. He returned to painting in his solo exhibition in 2022 and this current exhibition represents an extension of this practice. Tempera (pigment + egg yolk) is one of the oldest forms of painting and was the predominant medium until the 1500's, when oil paint took over. Meagher uses resin to bring the ancient practice of tempera into a more modern sphere, utilising the resin to subtly lift and suffuse the pigment, as well as incorporating themes from his resin and Perspex works in previous decades, such as the use of phosphorescent pigment and mirrored Perspex.

Meagher's work is represented by Maunsell Wickes Gallery in Sydney. He was previously showing with the Cat Street Gallery in Hong Kong and COMODAA Gallery in London. He has had multiple solo and group exhibitions in Sydney, London and Hong Kong. His work has also been exhibited at Sculpture by the Sea (Bondi) in 2014, 2016 and 2017 and in the Hong Kong Art Fair and Singapore Art Fair. In addition to numerous private and corporate collections, commissions include St Vincent's Public Hospital and Blackmores in Sydney.
